

LEGAL HEALTH CHECK

Got a problem that won't go away by itself?

Getting legal advice can help you get out of a bunch of tricky situations. If you answer 'yes' to any of these questions, it's a good idea to get legal advice to see what can be done.

FREE LEGAL HELP LINE : 1300 366 424

	YES	NO
Have you been in contact with the police recently? Example: arrested, charged with a criminal offence, questioned by police, been told you need to go to court, asked to sign something for the police
Are you a victim of a crime? Example: physical or sexual assault, threats, domestic violence, theft
Do you have a debt or are you in a contract that you can't really afford? Example: credit card, mobile phone, rent to buy, payday loan etc
Do you have a problem with Centrelink? Example: owe a debt, cut off from payments, refused unfairly
Do you think you've been mistreated by a police officer? Example: harassed, illegally searched, forced to answer questions
Do you feel discriminated against? Example: at school, at work, by someone in a public service or government
Is there a family or relationship breakdown happening in your life? Example: questions about separation, child protection, domestic violence, child support, where young people live, parenting arrangements
Do you have a fine you can't pay or you don't agree with? Example: transport fine, speeding fine, on-the-spot fines, expiation notices
Do you have problems at school or work? Example: bullying, sexual images sent around, being underpaid, sacked
Do you have issues with housing or tenancy? Example: need a house, help with bond, evicted, not sure of your rights
Do you have any driving related problems? Example: been in an accident, insurance, demerit points, lost your license

We help people understand the law and how it can affect them.

For free legal help,
call the Legal Help Line:

1300 366 424